

MEN 45 TO 65 REGISTER MON. APRIL 27

Commercial Sugar Registration April 28th, 29th

Trade Registration for sugar supplies will be made at all Four Year High Schools in Will County on April 28 and 29. This will include all retail and wholesale sugar dealers and all institutions and industries using sugar.

This will include all hotels, restaurants, taverns and similar places where meals are served as well as hospitals, orphanages, boarding schools, convents, jails and other large users.

Industrial users include bakers, candy makers, ice cream and dairy product manufacturers and producers of bottled beverages and syrups.

The High Schools are located in Joliet, Crete, Peotone, Wilmington, Beecher, Plainfield, Lockport and Braidwood. No distinct boundaries have been set thus permitting each registrant to use the nearest or most accessible school.

It is urged that as many as possible register the first day, as a larger force will be available than on the second day as it is the wish that normal school procedure will be as little interfered with as possible and those deferring this duty may find considerable time lost in waiting on the last day.

Any Will County civilian who is absent during the period for registration for sugar rationing May 4, 5, 6, and 7 may register in the locality in which they are at that time but should know their local board number, which is 99-1.

Applicant must supply full name, address, height, weight, color of hair and eyes, age sex as well as how much sugar they own.

It is important that everyone register regardless of the amount of sugar on hand. War Ration Books may be used for other items than sugar and to obtain a book later will subject applicant to much inconvenience.

In the trade registration for sugar the hotel, restaurant and institutional user will find it necessary to ascertain and report the amount of sugar used each month in 1941 in the preparation and service of any combination of foods and beverages. Sugar used in preparing foods and beverages which are sold as such rather than as food services will be considered separately.

With this information and a record of the amount of sugar he has on hand he will be able to properly fill out his registration form.

Sugar means all types of cane and beet sugar, whether granulated, confectioners, powdered, cube, brown or soft sugar, as well as liquid sugar and sugar syrups. Molasses is not included. Sugar in liquid form is computed as the weight of sugar solids.

In registering for sugar a unit is considered as Retail if over 50 per cent of its sales are to consumers while if less they are wholesalers. Their registrations will be made at the Four Year High School nearest their location.

The retailer must supply a report of his gross sales of groceries, meats fruits and vegetables for the week ending April 25, 1942 as this will be a basis for his sugar allowance. He also will report amount of sugar received during November 1941 and the amount on hand at the time of registration.

The high schools are Wilmington, Crete, Braidwood, Peotone, Beecher, Plainfield, Joliet and Lockport.

Sugar Registration For Home Use May 4, 5, 6 And 7

The registration of sugar rationing will begin on May 4. Registration will be made at the Elementary schools in the district in which the person resides. One person may register for all members of the family. The family lines are limited to father, mother, sister brother, grand father and grand mother. Boarders cannot be considered as members of the family unit. They must have their own registration cards. The person who registers for other members of the family must know the height, weight, color of eyes, color of hair and age of the person for whom registration is made. The amount of sugar on hand in the household will also be another item.

Much time will be saved if this information is written on a sheet of paper before going to the school to register. According to the official statements issued, no matter if you do or do not have sugar in your home you must be registered regardless of age or place of residence.

Registration in schools will end May 7. No matter how much sugar you now have it will be eventually used up. Sooner or later it will be necessary to register for no sugar can be purchased after May 7 without a war ration book. Tardy registrants then will have to prove what amount of sugar they had on May 7 and that they used it at the permitted rate of consumption. Having sugar on hand does not mean the person is hoarding. Many persons for years have bought sugar in quantities ranging up to a barrel. You must declare the amount of sugar you have. If that amount does not exceed 2 lbs. per person you will receive a book containing the full 28 stamps each authorizing the purchase of 1/2 a lb. per person per week. Each person is permitted to have 2 lbs. of sugar for which no stamps will be removed. If your supply is greater than 2 lbs. per person one stamp will be detached from the books for each pound over that figure. When amounts on hand exceed 6 lbs. per person no book can be issued until the supply is used at the proper rate. If you register, however, you will get your book promptly when your supply is exhausted.

It is only those who fail to enroll their names during registration period who will be subject to delay in replenishing their stocks. One person may register for an entire family unit. There is a school site in every neighborhood. Each school site is fully staffed by volunteer workers. Each registration will require only a few minutes.

The sugar rationing dates have been set for May 4, 5, 6 and 7. The dates mentioned apply only to the individual homes. All establishments using sugar in any form under which come restaurants, stores, taverns, etc. must register on April 28 and 29. An article relative to this registration will be found in another column on this page.

The hours of registration in most districts will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Mokena Civic Group Acts on Many Activities

Mokena Civic Association had a full program of events to consider and act on at their monthly meeting Tuesday evening at the Hatch hall.

Sam Peck of the Grant Park Amusement Company, who furnished the rides and a number of games and booths at the last Mokena Homecoming was on hand to make a proposition for the 1942 Homecoming program which was accepted. Mr. Peck stated if possible he was going to bring in a new ride known as the Silver Streak, but in case that this ride is booked ahead so as not to be available for the Home coming in August, the regular rides used last year will be in vogue again.

In addition, Mr. Peck stated that all the rides are fully covered by liability insurance and in addition the Civic Association will be given full coverage on a special liability policy which has not been used in previous years.

The annual Citizenship Day program which formerly took place in October and which by governmental decree has been set for the 3rd Sunday in May will this year be sponsored by the Mokena Civic Association. Raymond McGuire and Wm. Semmler were appointed by President Alfred Hatch of the Association to have charge of this activity.

The annual Memorial Day program will also be sponsored by the Association and Attorney Chas. B. Elder and R. A. Bechstein were appointed the committee to have charge of this program.

The question was raised by Chas. Rose relative to why the Association has not been incorporated and this proposition, after much consideration, was held over for action at the next meeting.

At the suggestion of Editor Semmler that the Association should create a civic committee for the purpose of keeping in touch with the local boys who have gone to army, service or who will go to camp at later dates, was given due consideration. Arthur Shoop and Editor Semmler were appointed as a committee to work out ways and means to provide mementos to the boys in service from the Association and to keep in touch with their change of locations and addresses and thus make the boys feel that the folks back home are thinking of them.

At the last Association meeting the question of providing a complete Red Cross emergency outfit was taken up and the Association voted to donate $25.00 for the cost of same and the Red Cross contributed a like amount. Richard Hensel, a member of the Association made a very commendable individual drive to raise funds for this purpose and turned in $31.00 which he had collected. It is understood that the proposed outfit would cost $180.00 but the Association felt that with the $31.00 thus far raised would be augmented by another $25.00 contribution from the Village board the funds to be ample to pay for an outfit consisting of litters, bandages, medicine etc., which would be stored in the Village hall.

At the last meeting the condition of the Wolf Road crossing of the Rock Island in Mokena was discussed and was pointed out that this crossing made of planks is in a very bad condition and that spikes in the planks were often pulled loose after trains had passed over and these protruding spikes are a menace to automobile and truck traffic. The secretary of the Association was instructed at the last meeting to write a letter to Whitney Carter, Rock Island agent at Mokena, regarding this situation complained of and he in turn upon investigation found that the complaint was fully substantiated. He made a report of this letter to the Rock Island officials which so far nothing has been heard from them.

N. J. Heiman made a very comprehensive report on the activities of the boy scouts who are sponsored by the Civic Association. He pointed out that Robert Geuther local Scout Master is doing a highly commendable work with the boys and they are very much taken up with scouting. Among their activities has been the collection of about 2 tons of waste paper of which they have sold a considerable amount netting them $24.00 and they still have quite a few hundred pounds to dispose of. The money thus raised is to be used to purchase equipment for the scout troop. One of the things which may be purchased is a trek cart to be used in hauling camping equipment when the Scouts go on a camping trip. In addition it was pointed out that the Cub Scout department has virtually ceased to exist. After much discussion it was finally decided that a committee be appointed to see whether the group program can be revived.

The final and one of the most important matters considered by the Association was that of Civilian De-

Menu Inspiration—Strawberries in Season

(See Recipes Below)

Strawberry Doings

Once again this red, bright berry is coming into its own, as strawberries dot the markets in this spring into summer season. For the lilt that it gives to foods in which you use it, for the harmony with which it combines with other foods, and for its own natural goodness, the strawberry rates a column by itself.

Honey Strawberry Jelly.

2 1/2 cups strawberry juice
1 cup honey
2 1/2 cups sugar
1 package dry pectin

Crush strawberries and drain through jelly bag without cooking. Measure juice, add pectin and place over hottest fire. Bring to a full rolling boil. Add honey and sugar and again bring to a full boil. Continue boiling for 1/2 minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour into sterilized jelly glasses and seal.

You will be allowed extra sugar for canning in spite of the sugar rationing, so do not be concerned over the amount of sugar called for in this recipe.

Strawberry Marmalade.

(Makes 12 6-ounce glasses)

- 1 quart strawberries
- 2 oranges
- 2 lemons
- 1/2 cup water
- 7 cups sugar
- 1/2 bottle fruit pectin

Remove peel from oranges and lemons and cut off white membrane. Put peels through a food chopper. Add water and bring to boiling. Cover and simmer 10 minutes. Add orange and lemon pulp and juice. Simmer 20 minutes. Add crushed strawberries. You should have 4 cups of fruit. To this add the sugar. Bring to a boil, and boil 5 minutes. Remove from heat, stir in pectin. Let stand 5 minutes. Skim. Seal in hot sterilized glasses.

If you want to ride the crest of popularity with family or guests, then arm yourself with a few strawberries, a bit of sugar, an egg beater, and old faithful, the refrigerator, and in no time at all you will have a perfect dessert for lunch or dinner or afternoon refreshment.

Lynn Says:

Honey Hints: With increased use of honey in prospect you will want to learn to use it most economically. Honey is different chemically from sugar so follow all amounts given in recipes carefully for best results. They have been tested to give you the necessary correctness in cooking.

To measure honey, use a greased or a moist cup so it will pour out readily to the last drop. A greasing brush is an economical way to grease the cup. In measuring spoonfuls of honey, dip the spoon first into cooking oil, melted butter or liquid fat before dipping in honey.

Keep liquid honey in a warm place, about 75 degrees or over. Avoid damp places of storage. Comb honey is better kept at room temperature rather than in the refrigerator.

To liquefy honey that has granulated, place in a bowl of warm water, just warm enough for a hand, and leave in until all crystals have dissolved.

Cakes made with honey taste different from cakes made with sugar and seem less light and fluffy when baked. But the cakes will be moist, flavorful, and nice textured if you let them stand from a day to three days to age properly.

Place honey jar in warm water for about 10 minutes before using.

ELMER TWITCHELL OFF TO CO-ORDINATE

"I'm off to Washington," declared Elmer Twitchell in an unusually high state of excitement.

"What for?" we asked. "I wanna be a co-ordinator," he replied eagerly. "What do you wish to co-ordinate?" we hopefully asked him.

"I ain't particular," said Elmer. "Squat tag or leap frog would be up my alley. I was national open squat tag champion in 1928, and I have written several books on leap frog which are standard works everywhere."

"But I am no slouch at lariat throwing or sack racing, either," he resumed after a moment. "Nor at Indian club swinging, apple bobbing and blind man's buff."

"Are they co-ordinating such activities?" we asked.

"Oh, yes," snapped Elmer. "Yes indeed. They are co-ordinating everything. Haven't you been reading about the testimony before Senator Byrd's committee? And this is no minor co-ordination, it's an all-out co-ordination. We are the Arsenal of Co-ordination, from what I read."

"Do you think you'll land a job?" we asked.

"Why not? Everybody else has. A friend of mine who has been good at card tricks has been named National Co-ordinator of Parlor Games under the OGD and Wilbur Jones, an alligator wrestler by profession, has landed as National Co-ordinator of Alligator Wrestling."

"Really?" "Not only that but an appropriation is being asked for $150,000 for alligator pools and $75,000 for alligators."

"Can you get alligators for that money, the kind that will really do any work?" we asked.

"Yes, alligators are as a class willing to sacrifice a little for the cause," explained Elmer.

"What does Mrs. Twitchell think of your working as a federal co-ordinator of rope tricks, squat tag playing and so forth?" we asked.

"Oh, she's too busy to care," he replied.

"What's she doing these days?" "She's a co-ordinator," he said. "Of what?" "Of magic."

lantern shows or eggplant culture, I am not sure which," said Mr. Twitchell. "She's doing well. Great for morale, she says."

"The whole Twitchell family is in on it," we observed.

"Yes indeed, Uncle Chidsey has been in from the start. He's U. S. Co-ordinator of Kite Flying at a pretty good salary. He is opening kite flying centers everywhere and thinks he may get a million dollars for kites. He says that nothing bolsters up a people's morale like running around with a kite on a string. And Grandpa Lem is co-ordinating, too. He's the one who never did amount to much at anything."

"What's he co-ordinating?" "Top spinning, I understand," snapped Elmer, grabbing a train.

Navy Forced to Reveal Enemy Subs Destroyed ... Buck Being Passed On U. S. Synthetic Rubber Program ...

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON.—Public opinion forced the radical revision of the navy's policy of not announcing sinking or capture of submarines.

The other day when the sender of the "Sighted sub; sank same" message got his second U-boat (and was promoted to ensign) the navy department announced that at least 28 subs had been put out of action.

This was still far from what the people wanted to know. For instance, the official statement said that these 28 had been eliminated "in the Atlantic and Pacific"; so obviously it includes some Jap subs sunk in the Southwest Pacific. What the people were worked up about was the sinkings by subs in the Atlantic, which had become such a menace as to worry the British government.

If we had been told more often just how many subs were being sunk in the Atlantic and particularly in waters close to our own shores there may have been a greater feeling of relief. The navy still likes the notion, which originated with the British navy in the last war, that it is much better tactics not to let the enemy know when one of its subs has been destroyed, captured, or damaged.

Silence on Subs Sunk

The theory of the British, which we have adopted, is that the German admiralty has a pattern in its placing of submarines for operations against supply lines. The thought is that when a couple of holes have been smashed in this pattern, and the enemy does not know it, we can take advantage for a short period, perhaps reaching into weeks, of that superior knowledge—run ships through the hole in the line, so to speak.

This theory is supported by a wealth of experience, the British admiralty believes, so it is difficult to argue against it.

It is supported also by the fact that while submarines can surface at night and listen for radio orders they do not dare use their own wireless for sending. To do so would locate them for hostile warships and planes.

But people like to hear about the enemy getting hurt, especially when there is so much bad news. Generals have been known to allow their troops to fire at the enemy when they KNEW it was just wasting ammunition, just to keep the morale of their men up.

So the navy now is doing the best it can in that direction without actually flying in the face of the major strategy in submarine warfare. Hence the announcement that 28 submarines have been put out of action "in the Atlantic and Pacific."

It is not always easy to be SURE that a submarine is demolished. But in most of the attacks on the Atlantic coast the locating of a sub and the dropping of the depth charges have been done by airplane, and a man in a plane, circling over the spot where the quarry was last seen, has a much better chance of determining whether the attack was effective than would the men on a destroyer, due to the fact that one can see farther under the surface from a plane than from a destroyer's bridge.

Background on Present Rubber Situation

There is too much buck passing on this synthetic rubber situation. Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold is trying to hang all the blame on the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey.

Actually the company seems to have done a pretty fair job in trying to interest the government in time to have prevented the present shortage of tires and other necessary war material.

Jesse Jones' enemies have tried to pin the nickname "Bottle Neck" on him. Actually it has been shown pretty conclusively that it was President Roosevelt himself who blocked the synthetic rubber program.

So what? It is rather difficult to survey all the facts that could have been before the President at the time and then charge that he showed bad judgment. On the facts in hand, it should be admitted that the President's judgment was not only good internationally, but—much more notable—sound economically!

Let's look at the picture as it was at the time he made the decision. Here was a proposal to make rubber out of oil. There were two kinds—two processes. Both of them were more expensive than production of rubber from the sap of rubber trees. One of them was definitely admitted not to be as good as natural rubber.

Either would cost more than we were paying the British and Dutch for rubber, which was 22 cents a pound. But—we knew that the British and Dutch could produce rubber and sell it to us at a profit at 10 cents a pound!

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

By HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, D. D. Of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for April 26

WAYSIDE CONVERSATIONS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 13:22-35. GOLDEN TEXT—And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.—Luke 14:27.

Learning by talking with Christ as they walked from place to place—such was the training for service which the disciples received. That was the greatest school this world has ever known, for while it had no great buildings, no beautiful campus, no learned faculty, it had the Son of God Himself as preceptor and teacher. With all due regard for our fine colleges and seminaries, we say this is still the outstanding need of Christian workers—to walk and talk with Christ.

On the day of which our lesson speaks the subject considered was how to be saved, and who should be saved. Several trends of thought emerged, but all pointed in the one direction of a diligent following of God's plan. In order to be saved, we learn, a man must

I. Make an Earnest Effort (vv. 22-24).

The question regarding how many were saved received no direct answer for our Lord wished to direct attention to the far more important question—Are you saved? Get that settled and the other matter will care for itself.

Here some who assume that it is an easy thing to be saved will receive a surprise, for our Lord says (v. 24) that it is something one must agonize over, for so may the word "strive" be translated. The door into eternal life is so narrow that no man can pass through it with his sins—they must be taken away. Seeking is not enough (v. 24), one must "strive" to enter in.

II. Enter While the Door is Open (vv. 25-30).

The door stands open for all who will, to come in. (What a friendly thing is an open door!) But men idly ignore it, or definitely reject its opportunity. Or they seek it, but do not strive to enter in, and all at once it is closed. Then in a frenzy they seek to enter, but it is too late. What an appalling thing—to be eternally too late!

Note their claims of acquaintance with the Lord (v. 26). One is reminded of those who think they are Christians because father or mother belonged to the church, or because they attend an occasional church supper or listen to a sermon by radio. Unless we know Him personally as our Saviour, He will have to say to us, Depart from me, ye workers of iniquity (v. 27). Let us make that matter very clear to those to whom we minister, lest they be eternally lost.

III. Follow the Fearless Christ (vv. 31-33).

To know the high and unwavering character of one's leader is to go forward with real confidence. What about the Captain of our salvation? Here we find Him facing the indirect threat of a powerful and wicked earthly ruler, in perfect calmness, with the very poise of eternity upon Him.

Christ, conscious of His divine mission and with determination to do the Father's will (Heb. 10:7), knew no fear of man. As we are in His holy will as Christian men and women, we too may boldly say, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man shall do unto me (Heb. 13:6).

Consider the rebuke to Herod (v. 32). There is probably no place in Scripture where our Lord spoke with such stinging contempt of any man. It is almost as though the black cloud of eternal judgment already had settled around the head of this man who was so sly and crafty that the tenderhearted Jesus called him a "fox." One wonders of how many He would have to say the same in this our day of supreme and malicious wickedness.

We find one more vitally important thought here. Our Lord offers Himself. He calls sinners to repentance, but they must

IV. Respond to His Invitation (vv. 34, 35).

To fail to accept His proffered love is to be left desolate. To reject Him as Saviour (either by neglect or by definite act) is inevitably to bring judgment. To the Jews this meant loss of their national home—their leading city, but to us it means the loss of our eternal souls.

"There is terrible suggestiveness in the two statements in verse 34, 'I would,' 'Ye would not.' The whole secret of Jerusalem's desolation and destruction is found in the words, 'Ye would not.' The whole secret of the loss of the individual soul is found in the words, 'Ye will not' (John 5:40)" (John W. Bradbury).

This lesson presses home to the individual reader the question, Are you saved? What is your answer? It also affords the Sunday school teacher an excellent opportunity to seek to lead the members of the class to a definite decision for Christ. The Sunday school is a good place to give an invitation

As a Gentleman

A man asked to define the essential characteristics of a gentleman—using the term in its widest sense—would presumably reply, "The will to put himself in the place of others; the horror of forcing others into positions from which he would himself recoil; the power to do what seems to him to be right, without considering what others may say or think."—John Galsworthy.

GHOST PLANE

By ARTHUR STRINGER

W.N.U. SERVICE

THE STORY SO FAR: Just when it looks as though Norland Airways is through, Cruger finds a "scientist" named Frayne, who offers to pay well to be flown to the Anawotto, a river in Canada's barren North Country, where he hopes to find the breeding ground of the trumpeter swan. This good news helps to soften the blow when Cruger has to tell his partner and ace flyer, Alan Slade, that his application for overseas service with the army air corps has been turned down. Slade explains that he signed up because he thought they would lose the business. Cruger says he has bought a new Lockheed that will keep them going for a while. He and Alan are discussing their new client, who is apparently not inexperienced, having recently returned from an expedition to the Himalayas.

Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER II

"What was this man Frayne after in the Himalayas?" Slade asked.

"The Great Tibetan Sheep. Karnell, he explained, was his shikari on both occasions. But Karnell doesn't count. All he does, apparently, is supply the brawn. It's our man of science who supplies the brain in that outfit."

"Wasn't your nature-lover shooting wide of the mark when he went looking for sheep in winter? It's in spring and summer sheep come down, anywhere. Every hunter knows that."

Cruger's chair-shift was one of impatience.

"Don't worry about your passengers. Your business, Lindy, is flying. And if you feel that dream-eyed ornithologist is after gold, like all the rest of them, you'll think along another line when you've seen him. He's different. And before summer's over, you may be sure, he'll be calling for supplies."

"Should he go in there to starve?" questioned Slade.

"He won't starve," retorted the other. "He's well heeled, his papers are in order, and the Royal Mounted have okayed his excursion. He's carrying a lot of equipment." Cruger's glance went to the window. "They'll be bringing over their stuff from the terminal any time now."

"Themselves?"

Cruger nodded.

"It's too precious, apparently, for our port boys to handle. Before sundown they'll be stowing it aboard your ship, and when they do you'd better stand by and check up on their kit."

"Why?"

Cruger shrugged.

"Well, let's say it's to make sure he doesn't give you an overload."

Slade rebutted his flyer's coat. "I'll be back from McMurray in two hours," he proclaimed. "And I'll check and double-check on that swan-stalker."

Cruger glanced up at the route map on the wall.

"An early start tomorrow should give you light for landing. It won't be easy flying, remember."

"I'll fly baby elephants to the Pole," Slade announced, "if it's going to keep this outfit on its feet."

Cruger's quiet smile was that of a man with a trump card still in his hand.

"But the important point," he pursued, "is that you're not the only one who didn't get to the Front this throw." He paused for a moment as though to give timing to a message too important to be lightly uttered. "I thought you'd like to know that Doctor Morlock's daughter didn't swing in with that Red Cross unit."

Slade turned away and looked at the wall map. It was taking time, apparently, for information so unexpected to be absorbed.

"How do you know that?" Slade demanded with just a trace of a tremor in his voice.

The older man's half-smile was quickly smothered.

"It came from Morlock himself. He'd the offer of a chair in medicine at the University of Manitoba and that girl of his was set on him getting out of frontier-life flying. I guess she felt he'd weaken if she stepped out and went over-seas. But the old boy stuck to his guns. He said he was needed in the North and would die with his boots on. And that meant only one thing for a girl like that. It meant she had to stick to her dad."

Even Cruger could smile a little at the newer light that crept into the Viking eyes.

"So she's not going to England," Slade repeated.

"No, she's flying to Coronation with her father tomorrow," Cruger said, as he picked up the envelope. Slade's glance remained preoccupied. He had the look of a tired swimmer who had unexpectedly found solid ground under his feet. Even the sunlight outside, when he swung open the door, seemed a little brighter. For there wasn't, after all, to be a wide Atlantic between him and Lynn Morlock.

He drew a deep breath and turned back to Cruger.

"You're right about this outfit," he said. "We're going to keep her going."

He swung the door shut on Cruger's smile.

Alan Slade, jolting over the three-mile trail between McMurray and Waterways, sat back in Cassie Olin's taxi and let the road and Cassie do their worst. But Cassie, he saw, knew how to handle her dust-covered old jallopy, probably the most northerly taxicab, omitting Alaska, on the continent. For Cassie, who had driven an Arctic dog team in her time, was both stalwart of body and resolute of spirit.

"Buyin' diamonds for your girl friend down the Basin?"

"Where'll I be droppin' you?" asked Cassie, as they rolled into the town's wooden-fronted main street.

"At Dillon, the jeweler's," Slade told her.

"Buyin' diamonds for your girl friend down the Basin?"

Slade laughed.

"There's no such animal," he said, as he waved her good-by. But he was wondering, at the moment, if Lynn Morlock would be paying her customary visit to St. Gabriel's. She'd be wanting supplies, before heading north. For the North was empty of much that was needed there. His present mission was evidence enough of that. It involved, he remembered, a wedding ring for a love-lorn mine-worker at El Dorado, a mine-worker impatient to travel in double-harness with a full-bodied Swede waitress who answered to the name of Atlin Olga.

For five years now, Slade also remembered, he had been an unattached shopping agent for the exiles along the new frontier. He had taken in Christmas turkeys and radio sets, dancing slippers and tobacco, compasses and clock-keys. He had swapped their beaver and muskrat pelts for layettes and cotton-flannel, and exchanged white foxskins for baby food and safety pins. He had matched yarn and learned how to spot service-weight silk stockings and select slips of the right tea-rose tint. He had sleuthed out needed machine parts and bought cough medicine and kidney pills.

So the purchase of a wedding ring, and even a wedding ring of the massiveness and diameter designated by the impatient groom, seemed merely an incident in the day's work. He laughed a little as he inspected the big ring in its velvet box.

His smile faded as he looked at his watch. His plane, he remembered, was awaiting his attention. He turned and looked about for Cassie's taxi. He was still diffidently searching the dusty street ends when he heard his name called. "Alan!"

It quickened his pulse. For he knew that calling voice belonged to Lynn Morlock, even before he caught sight of her between the loungers fringing the shop fronts.

She was, he saw, almost running along the none too even sidewalk. Her hair, close-clipped and boy-like, shone mahogany-brown in the sunlight and she carried her familiar first-aid bag. There was neither alarm nor excitement on her face. But there was resolution in her stride.

"Alan, come with me, quick," she called over her shoulder, without slackening her pace.

"What's happened?" Alan asked as he swung in beside her.

"There's been a fight," she said, between breaths. "There's a man bleeding to death. At least that's the word they sent."

"Where is he?" asked Slade.

They turned up a side street, where the idlers, both Indian and white, could no longer gape after them.

"At the Blue Goose," was Lynn's answer. "It sounds like a severed artery."

Slade knew enough of frontier-town gambling joints and gin mills disguised as dance halls to realize what they might have to face.

"That's no place for a girl," he contended.

"I've been in worse," was Lynn's quick reply. "And you may have to help me."

"Why isn't the Padre attending to this?" he asked as he hurried on beside her.

A shadow crossed the girl's face. "You know how Father feels about drinking."

"But even a drunken man can die," protested Slade.

"I'm afraid Father would let him," was the girl's answer to that. "He's no longer a doctor, where alcoholics are concerned. He's washed his hands of them. And nothing will ever change him."

Slade remembered something about that. It tied up, he recalled, with the hazy story of the Flying Padre's abrupt migration from a once-opulent city practice to the outposts of the Mackenzie Basin. Lawrence Morlock, he remembered, had his reasons for hating drunkenness. For as Slade was able to piece the story together, Lynn's father had been one of New York's most successful surgeons. He had flown high and flown fast, until the tragic death of his wife brought him up short. The enemy he was fighting on a well-fortified front line dropped like a parachutist in his own home. Bewildered and stunned, but refusing to give ground, he had sought relief in over-work and alcohol. But one night when called from a night club for an emergency operation his hand had failed him and his patient, a pillar of Wall Street, had died on the table. That death, the surgeon always felt, was due to his own drunkenness. It rang the curtain down on all his earlier feverish scramble for wealth. He cabled his daughter Lynn, then in Switzerland, that he was giving up his practice and selling his city home. He quietly dropped out of his old life and, a year later, reappeared as a relief-worker when a flu epidemic was decimating the northern camps of Canada. His field broadened as he learned the need for medical service along the outer fringes of the New Frontier, and he equipped himself with a plane which was used in many a mercy flight.

His daughter Lynn was proving herself a chip of the old block. For when she realized her father was somberly happy in that work and definitely committed to what she accepted as a life of expiation, she quietly went in training as a nurse, equipped herself as a co-worker with the Padre, and joined him in his silent yet stoic campaign of redemption. She had stuck to him with a tender loyalty.

"If this is going to be a murder case," he contended, "why not notify the police?"

"It mustn't be murder," cried Lynn. To the man following her she looked reassuringly fearless in the slanting northern sunlight.

They must have been waiting for her in the Blue Goose. The door opened, expectantly, even before she reached it.

"Where is he?" the girl asked of the pock-marked man in his shirt sleeves. He closed and locked the door before answering.

"In here," he said with a side glance of hostility as Slade pushed in after the girl. The sound of a phonograph blaring out dance music in some outer room suddenly came to a stop. A bold-eyed woman, heavily rouged, backed away at the peremptory hand wave of the proprietor, who opened a second door and pointed inside, without advancing.

His first impression of the room, as he entered, was one of blood. There was blood on the cover of an overturned table, on the floor and on the summer parka worn by a figure half-lying and half-crouching along a stained wicker couch splashed with red.

Slade couldn't tell whether the man in the parka was being held up or held down by an aproned and yellow-faced bartender who sat with one arm about the wounded man and looked up at them with the round eyes of a bewildered rabbit as the girl with the bag ran to his side. It wasn't until she pushed the aproned man away that Slade recognized the face above the parka.

It was the parka that he recognized first. He promptly identified it as the garment that had been given to Slim Tumstead by Air-Commander Rollins-Benson on the occasion of a bush-fire flight in which Slim had proved both his flying ability and his fearlessness.

It was Slim Tumstead looking up at him with a one-sided and slightly sardonic smile.

"I'm all right," he stubbornly protested. But his voice was thin with weakness.

"Let's see," challenged Lynn, with her bag already open. Each movement was quick and decisive as she examined her patient. "Get me water," she commanded, without turning her head, "water that's been boiled."

To clean those fashionable patent leather accessories, wipe spots first with a soft clean cloth and then polish with a cloth on which have been sprinkled a few drops of glycerine. This restores the leather's luster, too.

Don't wash eggs before putting them in the refrigerator. Simply wipe them off with a dry cloth to preserve the natural bloom that protects the interior of the egg from the air.

If you have trouble keeping flower holders in place in bowls, stick them down by first dipping the holders in hot melted paraffin. This works splendidly and the water in the bowl will not harm the paraffin.

If you have any leftover meat and gravy, why not make a pastry roll? Spread the meat, mixed in with the gravy, on biscuit dough, roll it and fit it in a greased loaf pan or baking dish. Bake about 30 minutes and serve warm with a vegetable sauce.

Herbert C. Bettenhausen, Tinley Park has been given the exclusive right to use "Bonnienland" as a herd prefix name in registering his pure-bred Holsteins. The Holstein Friesian Association of America has announced.

As more than 3,100,000 Holsteins have been registered in the U. S., and registration rules require that no 2 animals of the same sex bear the same name, reserved prefixes are useful to simplify naming. They are also of value in identifying outstanding Holsteins with the herd of their origin.

More than 12,500 of these prefixes have been reserved for breeders by The Holstein Friesian Association of America. Of these, 625 were reserved during 1941 alone.

The Tinley Park PTA will hold a card and bunco party at the Village Hall April 29 at 2 p.m. Refreshments will be free, and the public is most cordially invited.

Mrs. D. B. Murphy received word Tuesday of the illness of her sister, Mrs. Gilbert Smith of Monon, Ind. Mrs. Smith was taken to the hospital at Lafayette, Ind. the same day.

TINLEY PARK SCHOOL NEWS

Members of the seventh and eighth grades enjoyed their trip to Springfield last week end. The group left the Tinley Park school at 6 o'clock Saturday morning. The first stop was the Indian mounds south of Peoria. Here they had their lunch and visited the Mounds and were able to see how prehistoric man buried his dead. The next stop was at New Salem. In this restored Village they saw how people lived during the days that Lincoln lived there. The group arrived at Springfield at 5 o'clock at the St. Nicholas Hotel where they spent the night. The evening was spent in viewing the business district of Springfield and seeing a show.

On Sunday morning they visited Lincoln's tomb, Lincoln's home while he was in Springfield and the Capitol building. After a dinner in the hotel dining room they left for home arriving back in Tinley Park at 6 o'clock Sunday evening.

The children of the first and second grades are planning a trip to the Field Museum Monday, April 27. The Travel club is planning a trip to the locks at Lockport Wednesday, April 29.

The eighth grade class of the Tinley Park School entertained their mothers at a tea in the school office April 16. A short program was presented by the class after which the mothers discussed the manner of dress for the graduates. Following this discussion the members of the class served Tea and cake to their mothers. Mrs. Helen Sandidge poured for the class.

TINLEY WOMEN IN WAR BOND SALES DRIVE

Women chairmen in most of the 33 towns and villages in the south Cook county area have been chosen to direct the sale of war bonds in their municipalities. Mrs. Mark C. Bates of Flossmoor announced. Mrs. Bates a member of the Illinois war savings staff working directly under the United States treasury department, is chairman of the women's committee for southern Cook county towns.

The most important work of the committees will be a state wide campaign to obtain five million pledges for the systematic purchase of defense savings bonds and stamps. A house to house canvass will be made in an effort to secure the promise of every person with an income, earned or otherwise, to save regularly and systematically a part of his income in United States war savings stamps and bonds.

Another purpose of the campaign will be to determine what amounts the government can count on receiving from the nation thru the purchase of war stamps and bonds. A third purpose, according to the treasury, will be to carry the story of the part systematic savings will play in winning the war. Large voluntary organizations are being perfected throughout the state for function now and in the future. The Illinois pledge campaign has been set for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 11, 12 and 13.

Mrs. Bates and her committees are perfecting their organizations for this work. Service Men's News

April 4, 1942
Fort Devens, Mass.
Dear Citizens Service Committee:

I received your Easter package last Wednesday evening and sure was pleased with it. The cookies were real swell. Good home made cookies. Thanks a million. I sure appreciate it. I also received a lovely army wrist watch from my folks. And I got candy, stamps, cake, cookies and cigarettes from friends and relatives. Well how is everybody in Tinley Park. I send them all a hearty Easter greeting. I may be a little late but I mean well.

The weather up here has been swell the past few days, nice and warm. I sure hope it stays that way from now on.

Last Thursday evening I went to church in Lowell, Mass. that is about 20 miles from camp and has a population of 200,000. After Church a fellow offered up a ride around town so we went. He drove us way on top of a hill and we looked down at the town. It sure was beautiful. The town from the top of that hill looked about the size of Chicago.

I received another Tinley Park paper last week and sure was glad. I sure enjoy reading all the news from good old Tinley Park.

Well friends will have to close for this time, wishing you all the luck in the world.

Sincerely,
Pvt. John A. Lahmann, Co. F., 127 Inf. A.P.O. 32 care of Postmaster, New York, N.Y.

Citizens Service Committee

Dear Friends:

I thought I'd better sit down and write you a letter to thank the Community for the last two packages that you sent me. The one that you sent the 27th of March was waiting for me when I got back from my furlough and the one that you sent the 1st of April received it the 3rd of April. It makes one feel sort of funny knowing that you people back there are doing all that for us fellows, and not being able to thank all of you personally. So all we can do is to write a letter of thanks for what you are doing for us. I got back to the fort 1 p.m. Tuesday the 31st of March. I am back on the job as barracks janitor. The weather has been fine for the most part since I got back. Well I guess I'll close thanking you again for those packages. As always your friend.

Sincerely,
Pvt. Oliver V. Barr, 6th Div. Co. B, 6th Engineers Battalion, Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

1. Instruction sheets. Practically every electric appliance is accompanied by an instruction sheet or tag, printed by the manufacturer. Don't throw it away—read it carefully. Suggestion: attach a small bulletin board to your kitchen wall, and pin up all instruction sheets on it.

2. Cleaning. Electric motors wear better if they are kept clean. Wipe dust and grit off the exposed parts of your appliance motors with a soft, dry cloth.

3. Keeping dry. Never allow irons, toasters, space heaters, waffle irons, or other appliances with heating elements to get wet. They may be damaged by water. Clean with dry cloth.

4. Lubrication. Electric motors should be lu-bricated every six months. Use six drops of light oil in each oil hole (less for small appliance motors). If motor has grease cups, use light grease, or vaseline thinned with light oil.

5. Never put off a repair! If you think an appliance may need adjustment or repair, call a service man at once. A skilful twist of his wrench may prevent a costly overhauling later.

5 ways
to make your electric appliances last longer

Now that all of us are trying to get the most out of the things we own, it is wise to remember that the electric aids in our homes were built to last. If we don't mistreat them, if we give them a reasonable amount of care, they will respond by continuing to perform their time-saving tasks through the uncertain period ahead.

Here are five simple ways to make electric appliances last longer. Tear this out of your paper—let the whole family study it—save it for reference. Faithfully carry out these five suggestions in your home, and be confident that you are adding months and years to the lives of your electric servants.

Impending Sugar Shortage Necessitates Government Rationing of U. S. Supply

Citizens Must Apply For Ration Books Early in May.

Sugar can't swim! Whether you take one lump or two, this is the primary reason why War Ration Book No. 1, to be issued by the Office of Price Administration, will cover sugar.

Sugar beet is cultivated in no less than 19 American states from Ohio to the Pacific coast. Cane sugar is produced in Florida and Louisiana. Yet, less than 29% of our sugar requirements were raised within the bounds of this country. More than 71% came to the United States from off-shore area.

Cuba is famed as the "sugar bowl" of the world. But in 1941 no more than one-third of our 7,989,000 ton deliveries came from that country.

Puerto Rico supplied us with about 16 per cent of our sugar last year. Hawaii and the Philippines each sent us nearly an equal percentage. The small balance came from the Virgin Islands, Peru and other miscellaneous and outlying sources.

War in the Pacific, Axis submarine action in Atlantic and Caribbean waters and necessarily curtailed shipping has interrupted the sugar supply column from these off-shore areas.

Register May 4, 5, 6 and 7.

So Mr. and Mrs. America will register for ration books at their local elementary schools May 4, 5, 6 and 7. Industrial concerns, wholesalers, retailers, grocers, restaurants and hotels already have registered. From April 28 until the second day after individual registration begins, all sugar sales have been suspended throughout the nation, OPA has announced.

Services of approximately 1,400,000 registrars and facilities of some 245,000 elementary schools will be employed in the rationing procedure. In addition, work of the registrars will be supplemented by more than 7,500 local rationing boards, with a membership of some 23,000.

A registration card and ration book containing 28 stamps will be issued for every man, woman and child in the country, with the exception of members of the armed forces, inmates of institutions, persons temporarily or permanently in hospitals, convalescent homes, etc., and persons with hoards so large to disqualify them.

Each household will be allowed to have on hand two pounds of sugar for each person at registration. Hoarders will be penalized, either by not getting a book at all or by having from one to eight stamps torn from their books before they receive them. Carry the book to your grocer. The stamp must be torn out in the store keeper's presence and detached stamps will not be accepted.

Stamps will be numbered for purchases in a specified period and when the time limit is reached the stamp will be voided. In this manner no one can save—or hoard—stamps for use at a later date.

One adult must register for each family unit, although the head of the family may register for all family members. Servants, lodgers and others who may live in a household, must register individually. Generally speaking, a family unit consists of persons related by blood or marriage and living and eating under the same roof.

She's a young 'n, all right. But she knows how to lop down the sugar cane. In her spare time she also likes to chew on some of the stalks, for they make good tasting "sugar sticks."

Vitamins Won't Give You 'New Eyes for Your Old'

Warning against the false hope that a box of vitamin pills will provide "new eyes for old" was sounded recently by M. J. Julian, president of the Better Vision Institute. The average person following normal eating habits, he says, obtains adequate amounts of vitamins for eye health, adding that dosage with vitamins usually is disappointing as a "cure all" for common visual defects.

After the first registration, late-comers may obtain their ration books from local rationing boards after a two-week period following the May 4-7 registration. Those away from home may register in the nearest elementary school if they know the number of their local rationing board.

Provisions for Preserving, Canning. Special provisions will be made to provide householders with sugar for home preserving and canning, certain persons who have it for medicinal reasons, and for farmers, ranchers, etc., who customarily buy sugar in bulk for use over prolonged periods.

One thing is certain. Rationing is necessary, but a sugar shortage is all a matter of what country you live in. Prospective per capita United States consumption (including industrial use) may run as high as 77 pounds. Compare this with normal, peacetime per capita consumption in all other lands during the 1937-38 season. It was less than 31 pounds per capita.

There are many drains upon America's sugar supplies. Cuba also must supply our Allies, countries which formerly drew heavily upon the Ukraine and Java—sources which are not now productively available to them. Russia, which counted on a good share of the 1942 Philippine crop, now must rely upon some Cuban supplies arriving by way of Archangel, if possible.

In addition, a large amount of Cuban sugar will be required this year for the manufacture of high-test molasses from which alcohol can be made for war needs. In 1941 the equivalent of more than 1,300,000 tons of Cuban sugar was used for this purpose. A slightly larger amount may be needed for this use during 1942, particularly for explosives and for other war requirements.

Here is the final step in the sugar industry before you see it on your table at home, or in the restaurant. This is one of the many storage centers throughout the nation where sugar is kept until it is rationed out.

sives and for other war requirements.

Best posted sugar trade and Washington quarters recently added up the "tote" for the 1942 sugar barrel. The result was an estimate of some 5,515,000 short tons available from all points or roughly one-third less than the amount used last year.

In 1941 our mainland sugar producers (beet and cane combined) managed to account for 2,348,000 short tons. We can count on only 2,200,000 short tons from them this year. It certainly is not that producers here lack price incentive—since the OPA ceiling level for raw sugar—3.74 cents per pound New York, cost and freight duty paid—is the most attractive that has prevailed since 1929.

Beet Sugar Shortage.

However, distribution of beet sugar from domestic areas will fall short of the 1941 figure as there are smaller inventories to draw on than existed a year ago. Sugar beet processing starts in the fall. While farmers will co-operate to the utmost with the U. S. department of agriculture "all-out" supply program, there are definite limitations on the quantity of new crop sugar that can be delivered to users before year-end.

Admittedly, our domestic sugar supply arm may be improved materially in 1943. As on offset, however, the calculations have taken into account such non-recurring supply items as frozen stocks, as well as 500,000 tons estimated to come through from Hawaii. Effects of the war on shipping, labor and harvesting will make their imprint. Ordinarily, Hawaiian sugar is ground

Vitamins are important to the photo-chemical action that takes place in the retina in the transformation of light impulses into nervous signals to the brain. The amount of vitamins required by the retina, however, is extremely small.

If there are enough vitamins in the diet for the general well-being of the body, a person may rest assured that his eyes have an ample supply. Even in night blindness, which has been widely publicized as a condition resulting from vitamin A deficiency.

Ah—watch it! Two's enough. Two will do instead of the usual three.

on a 24-hour per day basis. Because of blackouts, night operations are unlikely this year. Retention of all relatively clear shipping lanes during the period preliminary to the marshalling of our full, peak resources for the maximum offensive effort also is a controversial point. All these factors call for careful husbanding—but not hoarding—of sugar supplies.

In 1941, some 5,641,000 tons of sugar used in this country came from off-shore areas. This year, possibly a maximum of 3,315,000 tons will show up from such points.

One must picture this sugar problem in terms of shipping and the competitive need for space on the boats for other materials, in either the raw or finished form.

When War Broke Out.

When the war broke out in September, 1939, there were 69,440,000 gross tons of world merchant ship-

Disappearing Island

Falcon island in the South Pacific is unique in that it has vanished and reappeared three times since its discovery in 1865, says Collier's. Being built up by the ashes of volcanic eruption and then destroyed by wind, rain and ocean current so many times, Falcon is such a geographical curiosity that it has been visited by scientists from all over the world, most of whom preferred to examine it, because of poisonous gas, from the deck of their ship.

When Your Back Hurts -

And Your Strength and Energy Is Below Par

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.
You may suffer nagging backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.
There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

Darling's Fertilizer

FERTILIZER

DARLING'S FERTILIZER grew contest corn on National and State Husking Fields.

1. NEW WORLD'S HUSKING RECORD (50.96) set on Theodore Schafer farm, LaSalle County, Illinois where both NATIONAL and Illinois State Contests were held on Darling fertilized fields.
2. Ralph Ford (Warren County) won the Indiana State Husking Contest on the Steve Taylor farm where Darling's Soil Builders helped grow the corn.
3. An increased yield of 13 bu. per acre with Darling's Soil
Builders on the Iowa State husking field convinced the owner,
William Treimer, O'Brien county, that it pays well to use
Darling's Fertilizers.
4. The Wisconsin State Husking Contest won by Omar Koopman, was held in LaCrosse county. Another winning field with Darling's Soil Builders.
Plan now to get "all out" production from your allotted acreage. The surest and easiest way to increase crop yields, improve quality and build up land fertility, is by fertilizing every acre with DARLING'S SOIL BUILDERS.

Darling's have already felt the effect of priorities and shortages on some of the other products they manufacture, such as glycerine, animal fats and glue. They have had trouble getting certain fertilizer ingredients and hardly know from one day to the next what their position will be for getting out our spring fertilizer.

Definite orders already received are for more than double the tonnage a year ago at this time. They will continue to accept orders so long as they have anything to sell. Times are too uncertain to make any predictions, but our best advice to our customers is to place orders right away, and unless we already have your order, get it to us just as soon as you possibly can. Your definite order booked with us is the best protection we know of in these times.

Huge quantities of war material are being made with all speed and equally huge amounts of coal are needed. Coal must be supplied unfailingly to factories, railroads and power plants.

The burden on mines and transportation is bound to become increasingly severe—is certain to strain capacity to keep both homes and industry supplied unless we do something now!

You can be helpful and protect yourself by doing one simple thing. Decide to order coal immediately!
You'll benefit from the season's low cost... make sure you actually HAVE the same fine quality and preparation you have grown to prefer.

And you serve defense by helping coal move in the steady stream that must be maintained if we shall have enough.
